MUSICAL FESTIVAL

A HUGE SUCCESS

The ninth annual Crows' Nest Pass Musical Festival came to a close on Saturday night last, when the final programme, drew a crowd, estimated at close to nine hundred, that packed the Columbus hall to standing room, and report has it that hundreds were turned away, unable to get in.

From the opening song, "Bye, Baby Bunting," to the closing chorale by a mixed choir of eighty voices from Cranbrook and Kimberley, the festival throughout was of an extremely high standard, all items being keenly contested.

Of the 200 or more entries, the programme was contributed to in the following order, approximately. Blairmore, 48; Hillcrest, 35; Bellevue 10; Coleman 32; Pincher Creek 24; Michel-Natal 10, and Cranbrook-Kimberley 70.

Burton L. Kurth, of Vancouver, was much appreciated as adjudicator. At various times he felt obliged to make special mention of high-class talent, especially in piano and violin. He was pleased to see such harmony among the people of the district covered by the festival, which assured in a large measure the success attending this annual event.

The special train from Cranbrook on Saturday morning brought upwards of 150 from Cranbrook and Kimberley, while hundreds came to town by auto and other means. Accompanying the Cranbrook-Kimberley gang were the members of the Gyro pipe band, twenty-two in number, whose trip was made possible through the generosity of the Cranbrook Gyro Club. To say that the Gyros were Blairstown up is putting it mildly. Several times during the day they paraded our streets with enlivening music, and were responsible to a very large extent for the happy atmosphere that prevailed throughout that day. The special left on the return trip promptly at midnight.

Initiative

Initiative, or the lack of it, the development or the denial of it, appear to be quite common subjects of discussion in these days of the Great Depression. On the one hand, people are heard to say that adoption of the programme of the Socialists would result in the destruction of individual initiative, while, on the other hand, exponents of Socialism ask what initiative is left to people these days, and what initiative has an unemployed man sub-sisting on Government relief?

Both are wrong. Socialism could not destroy individual initiative even if it would, because initiative is an attribute of the human individual, and it can be, has been, and always will be developed under any conceivable kind of government system, or set of circumstances. Initiative is God-given and cannot be destroyed, although its expression in definite action may be hindered, even for a time prevented.

Now is it correct to say that present day conditions are destructive of initiative, and that there is no room for its exercise by many people at this time. Rather, the reverse is true. Necessity is said to be the mother of invention, and invention is only possible where initiative is first displayed. The necessities of the present are, therefore, an urge to greater rather than less initiative.

Not only is the evidence not lacking, rather it is available on every hand, demonstrating the fact that greater initiative is being manifested by thousands of hard pressed individuals than they ever thought of exercising in the days of prosperity.

After all, what is initiative? A simple dictionary definition says it is an introductory act or step; the first active procedure in any enterprise; power of taking the lead or originating. That is, a baby shows initiative when it begins to creep, and more initiative when it takes its first toddling steps, and from that time onward through life. It cannot be destroyed.

But it can be encouraged, or discouraged; its development can be assisted or retarded. Parents and teachers have a very great responsibility in this respect. Employers, too, have an obligation in much the same way towards their employees, and if they are far-sighted they will realize that it is to their own advantage, as well as promoting the advancement of their employee, to encourage and assist their workers to display initiative in the tasks allotted to them. While it may be true that capitalism charged, that Capitalism operates in some ways to lessen initiative, it is also true that in quite as many other ways Capitalism has promoted initiative.

Governments, too, under whatever system may be in vogue in a country, may develop the initiative, not only of individual citizens, but of a whole people and country. Too much paternalism in a home is a deadly influence upon the development of the initiative of a child, weakening its self-reliance, and sapping its courage. In like manner, too much paternalism in government operates as a deadly influence upon the citizenship of a country, weakening the self-reliance of the people, and sapping their courage to meet the inevitable obstacles and difficulties which sooner or later in life must be met and, if success is to be achieved, overcome.

Parents should not be expected to do everything for their children; teachers should not do things for their pupils but train them to do everything they can for themselves, only so is character and ability developed; employers should not look upon their workers as mere cogs in a machine, but as thinking, intelligent human beings with personalities and abilities and thoughts of their own to develop and use for the common good of all; Governments are the creation of people in the mass to do for them what they, as individuals, cannot alone do for themselves, but Governments were never intended to perform those services which the individual can and ought to do for himself and herself.

Referring back to our dictionary definition of initiative—that it is the power of taking the lead or originating—the truth must be impressed upon us that, in the final analysis, it is the individual that must originate. In any great enterprise, or undertaking, in any large corporation, it is one same individual who first originated the idea to the development of which the organized forces of all are finally directed. Governments are only groups of individuals, and their policies have their birth in the minds of individuals, and their acts of administration are but the carrying into effect of a policy resulting from the initiative of some individual in the first instance, the wisdom and value of which is ultimately recognized by all.

A man or woman lacking in initiative never gets very far. If they are content to let others do their reading, study and thinking for them, then they will never become educated. If they are willing to lean upon others, and rely upon the judgment of others for decisions that may have to be made, then they will always be dependents, and never independent. If they refuse to exert themselves, to express themselves, they will go through life bereft of the influence they might and ought to have exercised upon their times and fellowmen.

Initiative is a power, let it be repeated, that all possess. But like all powers it must be used, exercised, brought into play. Only so is it of any value, and only so can it be developed, and made to be the rich thing in the life of the individual it ought to be, and only so can the rewards it is designed to bring to its possessor be won. It is a great gift, an imperishable gift, which should be highly prized, never surrendered, nor allowed to fall into disuse.

Science Comes To Aid

Can Help Narcotic Addicts To Overcome The Habit

Science has found a solution to the problem of the narcotic addict who attempts to free himself of the habit, anesthetists of the United States and Canada were told at their annual congress recently in Chicago.

The New York anesthetists related that the success of blocking nerves by means of alcohol injection, effective for days and even weeks, thus reducing the patient of the torture of fever, nausea, neuralgia and other symptoms invariably associated with stopping the use of a narcotic.

Most of the cases were those of persons who had contracted the habit as the result of intense pain during sickness or injury. Dr. M. B. Greene of New York explained, adding that it was different when the subject used narcotics from desire and was not interested in breaking the habit.

ARM IN SLING WITH NEURITIS

A woman says she is giving when she writes of her relief from neuritis:

"For two months I had had neuritis in my right arm. Till the last two weeks have had to carry it in a sling. Since then I have abandoned it, am able to sleep and eat normally again. I am optimistic enough to think that in another fortnight I shall have said goodbye to neuritis and feel fit again. Call me sentimental if you like, but one it is a token of gratification."

Neuritis is a condition of impotence in a limb. And it is caused by blood circulating all over the system and setting up inflammation in the tissues that causes those excruciating pains and inability. Blood circulation is stopped to set the matter right. Because Kruschen contains just that nature needs to persuade your internal organs back into a healthy, normal condition.

Argentine Raising Peanuts

Has Gone Into New Industry On Large Scale

Coffee and beef not being so much in favor as years gone by Argentina is beginning to raise peanuts on a rather large scale. In the past crop year production amounted to 135,691,520 pounds as compared with 129,328,450 pounds in the 1931-32 season, an increase of 33.5 per cent. The acre harvested amounted to 193,393 acres an increase of 6.6 per cent. The average yield per acre was 892.5 pounds.

Queer Animals In Oxford Zoo

Cat Has Fully-Developed Fur-Covered Wings

The curator of the Oxford Zoo has been puzzled by the arrival of a black and white cat which has on its back fully-developed fur-covered wings with which it is stated it can fly. It was seen in a local garden to which it had crawled to get out, to which it could not have hopped given its wings in a manner similar to a bird. The wings grow just in front of the hindquarters and measure a foot from tip to tip. The curator says he is somewhat sceptical whether the cat can really fly in the sense that a bird does. It is possible that its hindquarters are powerful and that it can spring to a considerable height, aided by its wings.

Monkeys Had One-Way Roads

One-way traffic was used by the Romans in Pompeii. The traffic problem was bad then because Caesar's chariots jammed the Appian Way. In 1868 a semaphore arm signal was erected at the junction of Bridge Street and New Palace Yard, London. It was illuminated by gas at night. All this was disclosed by H. E. Addison at a meeting of the Institute of Transport in London to prove that present traffic problems are not new.

Building Speedy Train

U.S. Railroad Figures It Will Travel Two Miles A Minute

Rapid progress is being made in the construction of the Burlington's two-mile-a-minute motorized stainless steel train in the Philadelphia works of the Budd Manufacturing Co. Experts from the United States Steel Corp., and General Motors, Winton Engineers, and the Burlington staff are scrutinizing every step of the development.

Travel experts call the Burlington's new train "a sensational answer to the broads on passenger travel by busses and private cars and a challenge likewise to air transportation."

The equipment is the last word in automotive and airplane development for railway passenger travel. The train will be a three-section articulated unit, operating on four four-wheel trucks instead of the normal size trucks used in a conventional three-car train.

The train is designed along aerodynamic lines, and from the standpoint of accommodation will weigh less than half a steam train of like capacity. It will be powered by a Diesel electric engine.

Seen Marked Improvement

United States Banker Finds Condition In Britain Better

Quite talkative about the marked improvement in British business conditions was J. P. Morgan, United States banker, on his return to New York from an extended visit to Great Britain.

While silent on various questions put to him concerning the domestic situation here, the New York banker emphasized that England had turned the corner away from hard times.

England is getting on very well. Improvement certainly is well set in there. The heavy industries are showing improvement and the whole feeling there is that things are better off. It is particularly helocinuous in the eyes of Majorcans.

New Submarine Chaser

Royal Air Force Machine Will Be Stationed At Malta

The first Royal Air Force flying boat carrying a quick-firing gun, capable of firing shells in addition to ordinary machine guns, has been completed by the Blackburn Airplane Company at Brough. The craft is designed principally for submarine chasing.

The new gun, which is mounted on a rotary turret in the forward cockpit, can fire 100 rounds per minute and has been tested short over an effective range of 1,500 yards. The shells are held in clips of five. The connection from firing all five rounds in quick time is said to temporarily reduce the forward speed of the flying boat by ten miles per hour. The experiment of mounting the gun whose recoil—representing a pull of 1,600 pounds which has to be absorbed in the boat's structure—will be watched with keen interest by air forces of several nations which are concerned with the same problem.

The machine will be able to fly 132 miles per hour with a maximum range of 1,500 miles. The wing spread is 97 feet and the length is 70 feet. It stands nearly 26 feet high. The new ship, named "Blackburn Perch," is one of four to be stationed at Malta.

Does Not Produce Chancellors

Only Two In Last Hundred Years Born In Scotland

Where do the Chancellors come from? Scotland claims so many of the Premiers and Archbishops of Canterbury of recent years that it would not be surprising to find the Northern Kingdom providing a good proportion of Chancellors of the Exchequer as well, especially in view of the Scottish genius for looking after the hawbecks. In reality, however, only 120 were born in Scotland. Sir Robert Home and the first Lord Ritchie, Mr. Neville Chamberlain was born in Birmingham—and so was his brother, Sir Austen, who was Chancellor 12 years ago. London can claim Disraeli and a number of others. Among the counties, Yorkshire can boast of three great names—Lord Snowden, the late Lord Oxford and Asquith, and Sir William Harcourt. But Lancashire can show three who are possibly still more famous—Mr. Lloyd George, who was born in Manchester, Gladstone, and Sir Robert Peel.

Japanese Ambassador Recalled From Washington

Not Expected To Return And No Reason Given

Ambassador Debuichi, for five years Japan's envoy to the United States, has been summoned to Japan and does not expect to return to Washington. No disclosure has been made of who will succeed him nor was any official explanation made of the reasons behind the summons.

Speculation arose immediately over whether the decision of President Roosevelt to negotiate with Soviet Russia on restoration of diplomatic relations had influenced the sudden action of the Tokyo government.

For nearly two years there have been frequent reports from Japan that Debuichi was too conciliatory in his attitude toward the United States to suit the army group within the Japanese government.

Natives Are Shocked

Members of the American colony in Majorca who shock the natives by wearing insufficient clothing will hereafter be treated as vagabonds under the new Spanish law and expelled from the country. Native Majorcans have been frequently shocked by foreigners going through the streets in their bathing suits and barefooted. To go barefooted makes an offense particularly heinous in the eyes of Majorcans.

MAY MOVE TO RAISE PRICES OF FARM PRODUCTS

Winnipeg, Manitoba.—Unless meat packers and other interests dealing in farm products take action to raise the prices the farmer receives the government may have to step in and do it for them, Hon. H. E. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce, told the Winnipeg Board of Trade. The same thing, he said, applied to insurance companies holding farm mortgages at interest rates the farmer was unable to pay.

"It will be asked," said Mr. Stevens, "why does not the government do this? There are several reasons, some of them constitutional."

"But if private enterprise fails to find a solution the government may have to step in and find it for them."

Beef, butter and eggs, Mr. Stevens said, were consumed almost entirely within Canada. These commodities, unlike wheat, could be raised if business men got together. Choice steers were now bringing $3 to $3.50, a ridiculous price. Mortgage companies also, he said, would have to get together and reduce interest rates and extend time. Farmers could not pay eight and 10 per cent.

Relief Distribution

Retail Merchants In Alberta Want To Hand Job To

Calgary, Alberta.—Alberta government will be asked to distribute relief in droves through retail merchants as a result of a resolution passed by the Alberta Board of the Retail Merchants' Association at the close of a two-day meeting here.

Members of the board agreed problems of the association made advisable an annual convention this year and it was decided to hold it in Edmonton early in 1934. A conference between manufacturers, wholesalers, jobbers and retailers was approved, may be held at the same time.

Looking to a year which is expected to see conditions much improved, the financial statement showed an operating profit for the first nine months.

Go To Washington

Soviet Commissar To Confer With President Roosevelt

Moscow, Russia.—Maxim Litvinov, Soviet Commissar for Foreign Affairs, is en route to Washington to confer with President Roosevelt regarding United States recognition of Russia.

The commissar's departure was attended by a general air of mystery and secrecy because of his desire to travel incognito. His private car was attached to the Berlin train. Its route was by way of Warsaw, Poland.

Chance To Break Record

Agricola, B.C.—The world's egg-laying record was equalled when "Dauntless Doreen," White Leghorn pullet, laid her 351st egg in 358 days. A University of British Columbia White Leghorn, in 1926 laid 351 eggs in 364 days. "Dauntless Doreen" has a chance to break the world's record of 357 eggs for a 365-day period.

Attacks Roosevelt's Plan

Nottingham, England.—Sir George Pash, world-famed economist, declared in a speech here that President Roosevelt's efforts to expand the income of the unemployed were having serious reactions all over the world. It is very doubtful, he added, whether any country would be able to remain on the gold standard.

Protestors Walk Out

Alpin, B.C.—Three protestors arrived safely at this remote settlement in the extreme north of British Columbia after a trip on foot from Wolf Lake, more than 100 miles away in Yukon Territory. The trio—Fred and George Cameron and Fred Alexander—left Wolf Lake with an Indian guide and provision for several weeks.

Returning To Canada

Geneva, Switzerland.—Hon. Dr. R. J. Manion, Canadian Minister of Railways and Canals, who had been attending the annual meeting of the League of Nations since mid-September, sailed for Canada aboard the "Empress of Britain" from Cherbourg, November 3.

School For Unemployed

Edmonton, Alberta.—Unemployed teachers of Edmonton are forming a school for unemployed, to hold sessions during the coming winter. A similar plan for education of jobless was in use last year, the workers teachers donating their services.

Needs Food And Livestock

Economists Say Russia Could Absorb World's Agricultural Surplus

London, Eng.—Observers in close touch with the Russian situation express amazement at a report from New York that $500,000,000 worth was being sought behalf of the Soviet in connection with the overtures looking to possible United States recognition—with $450,000,000 wanted for machinery and steel rails and $50,000,000 for cotton.

The observers said rails form one of the dirst of Russian needs and pointed out that Russia's most urgent need in for foodstuffs, and livestock of all kinds. Independent agricultural economists here say Russia could absorb the whole world's agricultural surplus on long-term credits.

Instead, it was noted, farmers in the United States are destroying millions of pigs they could have shipped to Russia, and likewise horses and cattle which could easily be transported on both land and sea.

Besides, much labor and industrial trouble in Russia would be reduced if ample food and livestock supplies were available, according to an economist who believes foodstuffs are needed more than tools.

Another source held that if the Canadian and United States wheat surplus had been exported to Russia two years ago, it would have taken supplies off the market and at the same time would have saved Russian peasants from the famine of last winter. Anglo-Russian trade negotiations are progressing slowly and smoothly.

Plot Frustrated

Attempt On Life Of Viscount Ratendon Is Reported

London, Eng.—Police started an investigation into what they described as an undoubted attempt on the life of Viscount Ratendon, only surviving son of Earl Willingdon, viceroy of India and former Governor-General of Canada.

Police were called when Miss Doris Flattau, a neighbor of the viscount encountered a man she said was an "Indian" crouching on the flat roof outside her apartment.

She said the man carried an 18-inch curved knife and that when she threw a flower pot at him he fled. Authorities recovered the knife and a piece of lead pipe the intruder threw at Miss Flattau.

The viscount, who was said to be going to India next Monday, was not at home when the incident occurred.

Miss Flattau, a novelist, said she was giving a party at her Victoria Square home when she heard a noise outside that caused her to look out of the window. It was then, she declared, that she saw the man crouching on the roof. The man, she said, was outside the viscount's bathroom.

Labor Troubles In Cuba

Break Again When Resignation Of Government Is Resigned

Havana, Cuba.—While a United States destroyer stood off the coast of Cuba to aid in checking serious labor disorders official attention again swung to politics when it became known President Grau's cabinet went to the palace prepared to resign.

The resignation was said in high government circles to have been offered as a result of serious consideration of a semi-parliamentary government proposal under which a commission of 20 would be established to virtually control Cuban affairs.

President Grau held acceptance of the resignations in abeyance pending further steps.

Second Labor Troubles At Several American-owned sugar mills warned the government as at least one American was endangered by striking workers who held him prisoner.

The United States destroyer in Oriente province, near the Alto Tigris was standing by off Mantilla, in Oriente province, near the Alto Cedro sugar mill, where C. M. Jervis, the American manager, was held by strikers who had formed a Soviet regime.

New Trade Transaction

North Portal, Sask.—A unique re-export transaction has been made here with the shipment of 3,000 live hogs from the North Dakota fish and game branch to the Saskatchewan Department of Natural Resources in exchange for several thousand pickerel eggs.

More Voters In B.C.

Vancouver, B.C.—Sixty-two thousand more voters are registered for the provincial election than were on the lists in 1928, according to figures released by the British Columbia government. The total is 307,267 compared with 245,240 five years ago.

Political Leader Dies

W. J. Bowser Is Victim Of Heart Attack

Vancouver, B.C.—Death struck unexpectedly in the political scene of British Columbia one of the champions of the independent non-parisian cause, W. J. Bowser, K.C., and inject new confusion into the already muddled election situation.

Mr. Bowser's death removed a figure familiar for 42 years in the political arena of this province. He was a former Conservative premier and had held various cabinet positions.

The veteran campaigner was the victim of a sudden heart attack. He was 65 and a native of Rexton, N.B.

While political friends and foes hastened to pay tribute, election officials found themselves confronted with a situation believed unique in the annals of this province.

Mr. Bowser was running in both Vancouver Centre and Victoria on the independent elections, which take place November 2. Election officials in Victoria announced the election in both ridings will be deferred until November 27.

Relief Distribution

200 Cars Distributed Free Of Charge In Saskatchewan Areas

Saskatoon, Sask.—More than 200 railway box cars, loaded with produce, have been distributed free of charge this fall in needy areas of Saskatchewan, it was learned Wednesday from Dr. John L. Nicl, superintendent of missions in northern Saskatchewan for the United Church of Canada.

All of this work has been done under the Saskatchewan relief commission with the aid of the railway companies.

Mr. Nicl's five provinces contributed donations but residents of Saskatchewan supplied more than half of the total to less fortunate inhabitants of their own province.

Police were called when Miss Doris Flattau, a neighbor of the viscount encountered a man she said was an "Indian" crouching on the flat roof outside her apartment.

She said the man carried an 18-inch curved knife and that when she threw a flower pot at him he fled. Authorities recovered the knife and a piece of lead pipe the intruder threw at Miss Flattau.

The viscount, who was said to be going to India next Monday, was not at home when the incident occurred.

Agreements concluded with the provinces, it is stated, follow along lines already indicated.

The Dominion will be established into work camps to be established under the direction of the Department of National Defence, as part of the program for meeting the unemployment problem during the winter. These camps will be utilized for carrying out federal projects, and the Dominion will clothe, feed and house the men and give them 20 cents per day for tobacco, etc.

Agreements concluded with the provinces, it is stated, follow along lines already indicated.

The Dominion will pay 33½ per cent of the labor cost of municipal public works. The federal government will also pay 60 cents per day toward men employed on the trans-Canada Highway, and 50 cents per day for those employed on provincial highways.

In respect to such single unemployed men as may be unable, for physical or other reasons, to go to work, the Dominion will pay him the cost of subsistence and a sum to a total of 40 cents a day.

Unemployment relief measures occupied the cabinet council at a two and a half hour session with Hon. W. A. Gordon, Minister of Labor, outlining to the government the measures being taken and proposed. No official announcement was made at the close but Mr. Gordon said there was practically no change in the system which has been in operation for some time.

URGE BRITAIN TO INCREASE NAVAL STRENGTH

Two of Great Britain's most famous naval experts, Admiral Sir Ernest Chatfield (left), First Sea Lord of the Admiralty, and Earl Beatty (right), former chief of the British Naval Staff, broke into the news within two days of each other. Both were reported as urging Great Britain to increase her naval strength as necessary for the security of the British Empire.

Albert Wiggin Gives Up Heavy Life Endowment

Washington.—Criticism of his retirement pay led Albert Wiggin, for years head of the Chase National Bank, to surrender his $100,000-a-year-for-life cheque in a surprise announcement to the United States Senate banking committee.

Interrupting the presentation of a mounting pile of evidence of the profits and risks in the Cuban operations of the $2,000,000,000 financial house, Ferdinand Pecora, its counsel, put into the committee record without comment a letter from Wiggin to the bank board giving up his annuity.

Concurrently with a meeting of the Chase board in New York to accept Wiggin's proposal, Pecora developed in questioning Shepard Morgan, Chase vice-president, that the bank floated $40,000,000 in Cuban bonds in United States with knowledge of a Cuban treasury deficit and financial

DROP IN PRICES FOLLOWS GOLD BOOST IN U.S.

Washington.—As the United States Government pushed the price of newly-mined gold 18 cents higher, a presidential order made it clear only gold "recovered from the natural deposits in the United States or any place subject to the jurisdiction thereof" could be purchased under the new Roosevelt monetary policy.

The edict ruled out the possibility that the governments of Canada and other countries outside the United States jurisdiction might be able to take advantage of the high price set by the Washington Government. The quotation of $1.51 fixed here was at 75 cents above the price of the metal on the London market.

But even though the Washington level was 18 cents better than that of the day before, news from commodity markets brought the first reversal in the president's campaign for a higher general price level to be achieved by artificially raising the price of gold. Wheat fell off two cents a bushel; cotton, 50 to 65 cents a bale, and leading stocks, $1 to $3 a share.

Officials, however, expressed a desire to continue the continuation of the upward trend which had already been expected, they said. They also said they saw nothing in the developments to indicate the economic theory behind Mr. Roosevelt's policy was unsound.

Germany Standing Firm

Must Be Assured Equality With Other Nations Hitler

Hanover, Germany.—Chancellor Hitler brought his momentous election campaign to provincial Germany, laying anew the treaty of Versailles and vowing that Germany would not return to the League of Nations until assured full equality with other nations.

"If the world wants to see us anywhere it must recognize our equality—if it doesn't we will completely break back," Hitler said.

He spoke to an audience of 100,000 people assembled in the mammoth exhibition hall and gathered in the streets before it. Amplifiers carried his voice to the throngs outside.

"In the future we will never again let our honor be sold," said the German leader. "Courageously and joyously only must fight for one's rights."

Bycutting German Goods

Montreal, Quebec.—German goods were officially boycotted by the Montreal Jewish Council of Women in a resolution adopted unanimously at a meeting of the council here. Mrs. Alfred Zimmerman, president, with her husband of the school of international relations and defended the attitude adopted by France.

Predicting Short Winter

Regina, Sask.—In spite of October blizzards which have swept Saskatchewan prairies, Indians of this district predict a short winter, with little snow. Their predictions last year, based on muskrats and berries proved correct. The winter was long and the muskrat needed their big houses, while the frozen berries furnished foods for birds. This year the signs are opposite they say.

Increase Is Shown

Ottawa, Ont.—An increase of 17 per cent was shown in financial transfers in the form of bank debts or amounts of checks paid in the banks in September when the total was $2,457,000,000 in the corresponding month of last year, according to a report issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

Sydney, Australia.—As the result of wide public agitation for appointment of Air-Commander Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith, famous flyer to some public position, the federal government has announced a grant of $15,000 to him, no position being available.

WHAT SUCKERS WE ARE

There's one born every minute. About six weeks ago a man called at the Times office and invited us to subscribe to a certain Canadian magazine, for which, as it happened, our subscription had just expired. On pointing out to him that as agents we received commissions on all magazine subscriptions, he put forward the plan that with every year subscription he got a number of votes which he hoped would enable him to complete his education, and further that he was quite willing, on behalf of his firm, to extend to us agent's privileges. We succumbed to his pleading, and haven't heard of him or the magazine to this day. It serves us right, and our chief reason for mentioning it here is that it may act as one more warning to a sympathetic but culpable public to refrain from dealing with unknown peddlers regardless of the standing of the firm they represent or the quality of their wares.

A stranger recently travelled through the country selling, among other cooking utensils, waterless cookers, priced at around fifteen dollars—in one district alone he sold close to two thousand dollars worth. Last Saturday we walked into a hardware store in Galahad and noticing a waterless cooker on the shelf examined the price tag. Believe it or not, it read $5.75. The storekeeper informed us there had been very little demand for them and yet a total stranger can travel around the country and sell hundreds of them at three times their value. The experience set us wondering. Taking a few accessories stores throughout the province to be signed by auto owners.

J. W. Bawden, provincial secretary, told the meeting that the Alberta Motor Association was right behind the move, and he expected that practically every car owner in the province would sign the petition. When it is thought that the petition has been thoroughly circulated, and the maximum number of names possible acquired, it will be presented to the Lieutenant-Governor.

A delegation of prominent motor association officials will present the petition. Circulation of the petition and copies will start Monday morning.

"Far more cars will be in operation throughout the year if the date for securing license plates is set back until April 1," officials said in a statement issued following the meeting.

"Usually, early in the new year, the motorist is unable to secure his license, and waits until spring returns before bringing out his car. During the interval, the car has been idle, representing a loss to all oil and gasoline dealers, auto garages and service stations, and to the community as a whole," the statement says.

"If, however, he need not secure his license until the first day of April, he may run his car throughout the winter. This means that the months of January, February and March would see as many cars in use as June, July and other summer months."

"Then too, the government would not need to reduce price of licenses as they did last year, a decrease which caused much confusion. With a new license year starting on April 1, the motoring public and the community would jointly benefit."

The petition reads as follows:

"To His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor of the Province of Alberta in Council:

MOTORISTS WILL PETITION FOR CHANGE LICENSE YEAR

In an effort to have the Alberta government declare the auto license year to be from April 1 to March 31, instead of from January 1 to December 31, as at present, the Alberta Motor Association will shortly send all over Alberta copies of a petition to be presented to Hon. W. L. Wilder, Lieutenant-Governor of Alberta.

Decision to circulate the petition was made Wednesday afternoon last by the board of directors of the association at the regular meeting, following attempts to bring the matter before the legislature.

The petition will be placed in 2,000 garages, service stations and auto extra; local hardware: 23 pieces; catalogue price $2.50, postage and mail order charges extra; local hardware $3.55. All-felt full size bed and mattresses, catalogue price, $9.00; local hardware from $5.50 up.

A friend of ours made up a list of staple household commodities and was surprised when, on our advice, he obtained cash prices from his local grocer who he could buy just as cheaply at home as at mail order houses and have the satisfaction of seeing what he was getting beforehand. High-pressure salesmanship has been developed to a fine art, but there is something wrong when people will pay $2,000 for about $750 worth of waterless cookers, or when a man pays for a magazine he never gets. As one sucker to another we got what we deserved.—Alliance Times.

There is something wrong also when local business men will listen to tall tales of bankrupt stocks of paper mills permitting eastern printing houses delivering letterheads, envelopes, statements and other printed stationery at so called bargain prices (if one forgets the freight charges) while the local printer is expected to keep up his taxes and other overhead expenses and placidly see the business sent east.

However, should the hometown paper fail to break forth every so often with ditties against the mail order house, the local merchant labors the editor for neglecting his duty.

Mere different view points.—Ex.

If people would have prosperity they must do business themselves, and not leave it all to the federal government.

"OLD FAVORITES" CONTEST
HUMBLY SHOWETH:

"That the annual license fee for motor vehicles becomes due and payable on the 1st day of January of each year.

"That there are many inducements prizes to those most successfully for owners to cease operating motor vehicles and avoid the necessity of paying license fees at the time, title of an "Old Favorite" song, the resulting in loss of revenue from the object of the contest being to name gasoline tax, loss to business to those each one of them correctly. A book serving motor vehicles and license convenience to owners, all of which could be avoided and overcome by the alteration of the license year, so that licenses become payable on April 1 each year in lieu of January 1st.

"Wherefore, your petitioners humbly pray that Your Honor may be pleased to alter the license year from January 1 to April 1 in each year.

"And, as in duty bound, your petitioners will ever pray.

"Dated this 23rd day of October, 1933.

"Alberta Motor Association,
P. A. B. Mackay, provincial president.

"J. W. Bawden, provincial secretary."

CHANGE IS URGED
IN LICENSE YEAR

The proposal of the Alberta Motor Association that the automobile license year should run from April 1 to March 31 each year and not the calendar year as at present has much to recommend it. The effect of the present system is to tie up many cars during the winter months with a consequent serious loss of revenue to the government in gasoline taxation and a general slowing up of activities at service stations, garages and other businesses connected with the motor industry. During the past two winters many men have been thrown out of work in winter because of the general tendency to store cars to defer the necessity of buying new license plates as long as possible.

Moreover, the rebate of five dollars off the license fee to those who purchased plates after April 1 last year established a discriminatory principle which was much resented. It was unfair to those who secured their license at the beginning of the year as required by law. If the license year were changed as proposed, it would do away with a continuation of this favoritism to delinquents, which cannot be justified on any ground.—Calgary Herald.

Very few people work themselves to death. So many of us think we are working when we are merely strolling around doing nothing.

THE WEEKLY NEWS—PAPER IS READ BY THE WHOLE FAMILY

An Alberta weekly newspaper notes that when a lot of country people in its province go to the post office for their mail they litter those offices with a lot of mail material, but they never do that with the newspapers they receive. It notes that circulars and such matter are consistently and abundantly consigned to the floor, but that newspapers are accorded infinite greater respect. They may be consigned to kindred fate later, but never until after they are taken home and read by the whole family, including the hired man.

This is true, as it is also readily explainable. The newspaper carries much of interest and value. It mirrors the great world without. It is not only a welcome visitor, but a veritable institution in the home. Furthermore, its cost is relatively trivial.—Regina Leader-Post.

Two carloads of beef cattle were shipped to Scotland from the Cowley stockyards on Thursday, with one carload of selected steers being sent from Cecil Elton's herd, the other car made up by Ralph Welch and Jack Rhodes.

In spite of the fact that there was almost a total crop failure in this section of Alberta this year, Mr. Landry, who is located four miles south and west of Cowley, managed to grow a good average crop of potatoes, with some of them weighing as much as a pound and a half. From eight bags planted last spring, he harvested one hundred and thirty bags at digging time.

There were several speakers, and all angles of the position of the men were discussed. Very little headway was made, however, and another meeting will be held in the near future.

Murphy would teach that the musical festival is a capitalist organization. It should interest him to learn that among those taking part in visiting ladies' and mixed choirs were washerwomen, scrubwomen, gardeners, waitresses, etc.—all bona fide "workers."

One article published recently in The Blairmore Enterprise was copied or quoted by no less than twenty-five papers in Canada, including the following: Record; Fort Saskatchewan; Globe, Toronto; Herald, Halifax; Chronicle, Halifax; Times, Wellaskin; Beacon-Herald, Stratford, Ont.; Citizen, Sun, Truro, N.S.; Mercury, Renfrew, Ont.; Evening Tribune, Welland, Ont.; Times-Journal, St. Thomas, Ont.; Times, Port Elgin, Ont.; Province, Innisfail, Alta.; Telegraph-Journal, St. John, N.B.; Morning Journal, Ottawa; Standard, Listowel, Ont.; Standard, Cornwall, Ont.; Breeze, Canoe, M.S.; Maple Leaf, Port Denver, Ont.; Sentinel, Kamloops, B.C.; Advance, Dutton, Ont.; Herald, Hanna, Alta., and Mirror, Winnipeg. Alberta unemployment camp No. 16, established in the Livingstone Gap, 30 miles north of Lundbreck, in the Crows' Nest Pass, will have 100 men this winter working on the completion of a gravel road into the splendid hunting and fishing facilities beyond. The camp was established last June under the jurisdiction of the provincial government, and has been operating with 100 men all summer. The camp, which has been accepted as more or less a model for such establishments, is well equipped and the men are comfortable and well fed. The scenes above show views of the camp, and of the road now being built through the Gap.

Mr. L. L. McLean acted as chairman on Thursday evening; Mayor George Paterson of Coleman, on Friday evening; and Mayor O. Allison, of Pincher Creek, for the closing programme on Saturday.

During the Saturday evening session, a letter was read from Rev. W. T. Young, of Calgary, founder and honorary president of the festival, expressing regret at being unable to attend and offering best wishes for success. A message was also received from Frank J. Smith, secretary-treasurer of the festival, who was critically ill at Calgary. He, too, wished the festival all success.

Mr. Gillman, of Vancouver, who accompanied Mr. Kurth to Blairmore, very kindly and ably assisted in the adjudications during Thursday and Friday.

Mr. Gillman is organist and choir master at Ryerson church, Vancouver, and was obliged to leave Friday night in order to be in Vancouver for services on Sunday. Rev. Mr. Larke assisted Mr. Kurth during Saturday.

The Cranbrook-Kimberley choir of seventy-five voices, under direction of Mr. David Morgan, sang the Hallelujah Chorus as the closing item, when the entire audience stood. Adjudicator Kurth stated that he had hardily expected to find such choral work in this district. Prior to the Hallelujah Chorus, the choir sang two competitive pieces, "I Live Not Where I Love," and "Sweet Love for Me."

High praise was accorded the work of the Cranbrook Anglican church choir for their very excellent renditions of the test pieces, when the adjudicator stated he had never heard better singing.

One of the main features on the Saturday evening programme was the solo competition, open to any voice, in which fourteen adults competed. A. B. McMurdo, Alberta gold medalist, of Pincher Creek, and Mrs. E. R. F. Park, of Cranbrook, tied for first honors, being awarded 85 points each.

The festival was by far the most successful yet held. Recent improvements effected to the Columbus hall afforded much greater accommodation, making it the most suitable building for such an event in the entire district.

At the close of each evening's programme, certificates and trophies were presented to the successful competitor.

Alberta Weekly Newspaper Association members will not give free publicity to the "Made in Alberta" campaign, according to a resolution passed at the recent annual two-days' convention. It was pointed out that weekly newspapers had to carry on their business the same as any commercial organization and that under the circumstances, tactics of Alberta Manufacturers' Association in regard to publicity for this campaign were grossly unfair, especially as they were offenders against their own slogan.

Armament DisputeDiscuss Issue Between British And German Foreign Ministers

The government has issued a white paper, which it was learned authoritatively, was aimed at settling the issue of disarmament negotiations between Sir John Simon, Secretary for Foreign Affairs, and Konstantin von Neurath, the German Foreign Minister.

The document merely put into permanent and official form previously published reports regarding the disarmament bureau meeting in Geneva on October 14 and an exchange of telegrams between Sir John and Baron von Neurath concerning Germany's withdrawal from the arms parity.

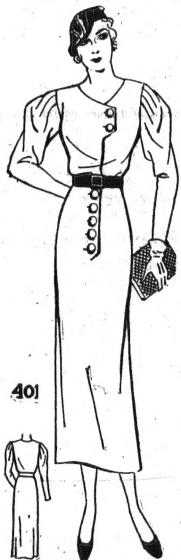

The main point at issue between the British and German foreign ministers was whether Sir John had accurately interpreted Anglo-German conversations in London, October 6, to American delegates and others.

Peat in Fraser ValleySeveral Large Farms Furnish Unusual Source Of Income

Farmers of the Fraser Valley, British Columbia, have an unusual source of income in their peat fields. The peat is cut in the summer and stacked into picturesque piles which are allowed to dry in the sun. Later it is removed to air-drying barns and when in ripe condition it is treated by machinery for poultry litter, for horticultural and nursery purposes and for insulating in building requirements. There are several large peat farms in the lower Fraser Valley, one in Surrey, one in Burnaby, one in Pitt Meadows and another in Lulu Island.

Grasshopper DestructionSever Outbreak Next Year Seems Almost Inevitable

There seems to be a rather widespread belief that, in spite of the fact that grasshoppers were very abundant during the summer and fall of 1933, no serious outbreak will occur in the spring of 1934. The available facts, however, lend practical support for such an expectation. To understand the situation, some knowledge of the life history and development of grasshoppers, and of the nature and causes of the recurrent outbreaks, is necessary.

Life History and Development. The grasshoppers of economic importance in the Great Plains all pass the winter in the egg stage in the soil. The eggs are deposited by the adult or winged grasshoppers during August and September. The adults live and continue to deposit eggs as long as warm, open weather occurs, gradually dying off until the coming of snow and the frost kills the last survivors.

The eggs are very well protected against premature hatching. Indeed it has been found that a period of 30 days with the temperature continuously above 80 degrees Fahrenheit in the soil would be required to cause hatching in the fall. The eggs are also able to survive extreme cold and, as long as they remain undisturbed in their natural position in the upper layer of soil, our severe winters have no effect upon them. When the soil again warms up, hatching occurs more easily but usually does not begin in the Prairie Provinces until at least the middle of May, becoming common the latter part of May and early in June. Although often delayed, it is commonly paried, the hatching of these eggs is usually complete by the later part of June. The young hoppers develop rapidly, beginning about the middle or latter part of July. The adult grasshoppers may then move to other localities of fields, in which they continue their feeding until ready for depositing eggs.

There are a good many other species of grasshoppers, which are of little if any economic importance here, which vary rather widely in their habits. For example, some of those other forms hatch from the eggs during summer and pass the winter in a part-conditioned condition. Other species winter as well-grown nymphs and still others in the adult stages. All of these types become conspicuous as soon as the snow melts in the spring but should not be confused with the economic forms.

It has been found that grasshoppers tend to increase when the spring is warm and dry, and the summer wet and fall exceptionally dry. Under these conditions, especially if they are very pronounced, much more than the normal number of eggs may be laid and a large proportion of the young hoppers will survive to maturity. If, however, such seasons occur in succession, then an outbreak develops. The extent of area affected and the intensity of the infestation depends upon just how favourable the weather conditions are for the grasshopper and how widespread these conditions occur.

Ordinarily, the outbreaks reach a peak of intensity and distribution, and then the numbers decline. The decrease, in turn, is primarily due to adverse weather, such as cool and very wet weather immediately after hatching, or cold, wet and cloudy conditions during the egg-laying season, under these conditions, much fewer than the normal number of eggs are laid and most of the young hoppers perish without reaching maturity. The decrease may be very rapid if the adverse conditions are intense and of long duration, and especially when aided by disease as well as the usual parasites and predators.

The most significant thing to remember is that the decrease in grasshopper numbers occurs almost invariably during the summer, preventing another outbreak; rather than in the early spring. A long period of records shows that rarely does an outbreak fail to occur once the eggs are in the ground, and even then affects only a rather local area, in fact, only three instances are known in which there had been such an occurrence and in at least one of these, a rather intensive campaign was necessary.

You can see at a glance how utterly simple it is to fashion it. Just a few major parts to the pattern. It depends entirely on its design for its smartness.

Natural Resources Commission*Saskatchewan And Alberta Seeking Compensation For Alienation Of Lands

Saskatchewan and Alberta will urge upon Prime Minister R. B. Bennett, the immediate establishment of a natural resources commission to determine the compensation coming to the provinces for the alienation of lands since 1905.

Mr. Justice Bigelow has been named as the Saskatchewan member of the commission while Alberta will be represented by Mr. Justice Tweedie.

Announcement that the two provinces would make joint representations for such a move was made by Hon. M. A. McPherson, Attorney General and Provincial Treasurer for Saskatchewan.

It is stated that the commission would likely consist of five members and would adjudge on the position of both provinces. The Dominion government, he believed, would likely name a representative for each province, while the two provinces and the federal government would agree upon a chairman.

It is stated that the commission would likely consist of five members and would adjudge on the position of both provinces. The Dominion government, he believed, would likely name a representative for each province, while the two provinces and the federal government would agree upon a chairman.

Mr. Justice Bigelow has been named as the Saskatchewan member of the commission while Alberta will be represented by Mr. Justice Tweedie.

OCCASIONAL WIFE

By EDNA ROBB WEBSTER

Author of "Joretta," "Lipstick Girl" Etc.

SYNOPSIS

Camilla Hoyt, young and beautiful commercial artist, and Peter Anson, a struggling sculptor, meet in an art class and fall in love. She is the adopted daughter of a wealthy family, but is not to share their fortune when she comes of age. They are faced with the problem of "marriage in secret" and Camilla decides to tell the Peers down when he has so much promise as a sculptor. At an art school dance, Gus Matson, Peter's roommate, who is jealous of Peter's success, tells Camilla to keep her lawn to tell her "something" she should know about Peter. Gus tells Camilla Peter is a chump that he only wants to marry her because he loves her himself. At that moment, Peter appears on the scene and knocks Gus flat. On the way home from the party, Camilla and Peter are going to do something about their problem. She decides that they are to be married, and until Peter establishes himself, he is to go on living his separate lives. About the Peers, she carries her point.

CHAPTER XV.

When Peter returned to his room, he found that Gus had been there and gone again, taking with him all that belonged to him and several articles belonging to Peter, as well. In the days which followed, he missed various of his possessions as he needed them; his tie, a lately acquired shirt, his work jacket and materials. In lieu of these, he had left his own, his old belongings.

But Peter dismissed such trivial matters from his thoughts and devoted them to ways and means of justifying his marriage to Camilla as soon as school closed in June. All their plans were made. They would be married quietly and keep it secret, if possible. Peter had wanted to take a studio somewhere near the museum, where he could work alone and devote all his time to studying and modeling. They agreed that he should do just that. Camilla had planned to remain with the Hoyts during the summer, while she looked for a position. Beyond that, everything was undecided. Her own family had suggested that she might return to them, but she had no desire now to share a home and family which had discarded her once. True, she had been done in the interest of her welfare, but she resented it, nevertheless.

How much would it cost for her, she thought, to be sure to secure a room somewhere near town with her younger sister, Rose, who already was a file clerk in a downtown office?

"I've always liked Rose best, since I've known my family," she told Peter. "Of course, we aren't much alike, having lived in such different environments, but we agree pretty well and she's a wise little kid. I think I could learn a lot from her, and teach her things, too. It might be good for both of us, you see."

Peter favored that plan to her living at home, so it was tentatively arranged that as soon as Camilla obtained a position, she and Rose would take a room somewhere together. But upon no account was Peter to consider himself obligated to her as a husband. Everything was to be sacrificed to his career except their occasional pleasure of seeing each other and sharing inexpensive recreations such as they would have done under other circumstances. There was some discussion about confiding their plans to Mrs. Hoyt.

"But why should we?" Camilla asked. "The way she is throwing out upon the mercy of the world, she can't leave much what becomes of me. I'll leave there soon, anyway, and it would only make her more disagreeable until I do. If she were my mother or really concerned for my future, it would be different. As for my own mother, she never has been concerned about me, except to give me away because it would provide a chance for me to live in luxury. Queer—to have two mothers and yet have none, really. I feel like a half-child, as it is."

"You're worth a million," Peter told her.

"Oh, you," she reminded him.

"Well, it had better be to me," he laughed happily. "How about the honeymoon?"

"We shall have that when you are famous, and we can sail around the world," he said. "I shall be a crotchety old fossil," he warned her.

"I'll wait! But Peter, you might get your new studio ready to celebrate our wedding!"

For which he applied himself to every odd task he could find that would add a few dollars to his depleted account. He had hoped to take one of the larger studios in the Craft Building, but he kept this cherished ambition to himself and managed a similar one in the Annex Hall, in the rear. At least, it was very much better than the shabby rooming house where he had been living, and where he could not have taken Camilla for anything in the world.

There were times when he doubted the wisdom of their impulsive plans. This wasn't the way he wanted Camilla. Still—he could have her no other way—unless he took some commercial position at a nominal salary and sacrificed his beloved dream. He would do that, even, if some situation developed which made it necessary. But for her sake as well as his own, just now, the braver, wiser course was the one on which they had agreed.

Even so, she was a magnificent little sport to take such a chance with him. Like a youngster who refuses to look at the once pale while he obediently eats the hot pudding which his mother recommends for him. "Well, I never would forget my loyalty," he vowed, and resolved to make it up to her some day. He hoped that day would not be too far away.

As for Camilla, her felicity clothed her like a shining garment. Her joy of anticipation could not have been greater than she approached a marriage of prominence and wealth, to be celebrated with a royal wedding. Her manner continued to mystify Mrs. Hoyt, who rather envied anyone whose slightest word or action could convey so much delight. Her beauty glowed warmly, as a flower-bud opens expectantly to the promise of its fulfillment.

She laughed and sang about the house as she had done in those years before she had learned the truth about her family and position. She was much more available and confident than Mrs. Hoyt. At the same time that person knew she was confessing from her the most intimate experience in her life.

"Camilla," she ventured one evening, "it can't be that you are interested in this—ah—Mr. Anson?"

"Why shouldn't I be interested in him? He is the most popular fellow in school," she replied calmly enough, while her heart beat furiously at the mention of Peter's name. Of course, he was in her thoughts constantly, but it startled her to hear his name spoken by anyone else. Mr. Anson—soon now she would be Mrs. Anson, she thought with exultation.

"Of course, but being popular at National is of little significance. Such prominence can mean nothing. You must not waste your attentions upon a man who is not already established."

Anger swelled within Camilla's breast, but she had learned to control her thoughts and speech in the presence of this dominating woman whom no words could move. Opposing her was like insisting that you were stronger than a stone wall and trying to beat it down with your feeble force. Peter to admit that it was there and later climb over the obstruction quietly.

"I don't intend to waste my attention upon any man," Camilla replied enigmatically. Which was true enough. Any attention which she gave to Peter was wasted, she thought with a secret happiness, and continued thoughtfully. "My greatest concern now is a position. You know, I'm a painter. You can't imagine how much I have to do for the arrangements you made for my future. You couldn't have done better, because I am going to find myself and real happiness in this great adventure into which you have forced me."

"But my dear, my plans did not involve you taking a position. I reared you so that you could marry wealth and position—and you may, at any time you wish. Terry called again to-day."

"I'm not at all interested in Terry. I am too busy to be wasting my time on a man like him," she repeated, with a chuckle. "Our class assignments are pretty heavy now and final exams in two weeks. All the time I have for social affairs will be occupied at school. By the way, are you coming to see me presented with my certificate of entry into the world affairs? Society will be represented quite largely, because I am not the only lady of leisure who got stung with the ambition bug. Avis Werth, you know, and Muriel Ames are in there, too. Heard for a little time along the sky."

And then their despair.

Late Viscount Grey Had Remarkable Power Over Birds

Since his retirement from the Foreign Secretariat in 1916, the late Viscount Grey had devoted less and less time to politics and more and more to the study of wild nature, of which he was passionately fond. He had a remarkable power over birds, and his study window at Falodon was always kept open so that they could come in for a meal. In the glass panes of his study window, some of which are so tame that they would perch on Lord Grey's hat and feed from his hand. If he neglected them they plucked at his bootlaces.

Agriculture In Canada

Is Chief Single Industry Of People In Dominion

Agriculture, including stock raising and horticulture, is the chief single industry of the Canadian people, employing according to the latest available figures 28.7 per cent of the total gainfully occupied population and 33.9 per cent or over one-third of the gainfully occupied males. In addition, it provides the raw material for many Canadian manufacturers, and its products in raw or manufactured form constitute a very large percentage of Canadian exports.

America is the place where you can find an abandoned home but never an abandoned golf course.

the same class. The difference is that they went to National to increase their chances of finding a man and I want to decrease my need of accepting one," she laughed.

"Camilla, you are incorrigible. You always have been a problem that grows no better with age and looking for a solution."

"Then you'll be rather glad to be rid of me, won't you?" she observed thoughtfully, with that inherent twinge of pain which everyone experiences at the thought of leaving the place that has been home.

Even Mrs. Hoyt's practical voice was a little wistful when she replied. "No—I shall miss you very much, Camilla. I wish there were some way—but let me say no more about it. You will not be leaving for several months, and much can happen during the place that has been home."

"Then you'll be rather glad to be rid of me, won't you?" she observed thoughtfully, with that inherent twinge of pain which everyone experiences at the thought of leaving the place that has been home.

How much would happen she little knew, thought Camilla. Nor did Camilla know what would happen, else her optimism, which is the inimitable hope of youth, might have drooped sadly.

Just Silly Superstition

Nothing In Idea About Broken Mirror Or Spilled Salt

Don't be alarmed if you break a mirror and someone says that you'll have seven years' bad luck, because, like most superstitions, it is all nonsense and merely the end of witchcraft that was practised during the Middle Ages. In those days if someone wanted to do harm to someone else he would contrive to break a mirror into which the second person had lately peered. It was said that if the mirror could be broken before the image of the victim had "evaporated" seven years' bad luck would be bound to follow the smashing of the glass. Actually, of course, the whole idea is ridiculous, just as ridiculous as thinking that the spilling of salt will bring bad luck. That particular superstition is that if you spill salt at a man's table a fortune-teller has dined with him to insult him and challenge him to battle.

Anger swelled within Camilla's breast, but she had learned to control her thoughts and speech in the presence of this dominating woman whom no words could move. Opposing her was like insisting that you were stronger than a stone wall and trying to beat it down with your feeble force. Peter to admit that it was there and later climb over the obstruction quietly.

Purpose strongly by the grace and strength of God wholly to sacrifice this sin or sinful inclination to the love of God, to spare it not until Thou leavest it of none remaining, neither root nor branch. Fix by God's help not only to root out this sin but to set thyself to gain by that same help the opposite grace.
